

The Move towards an Empathetic Temporality in Yuri Medvedev's "The Bride's Room"

By Anway Mukhopadhyay

GRIN Verlag Gmbh Okt 2013, 2013. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 210x148x2 mm. This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject Literature - Modern Literature, grade: hundred per cent (10 out of 10), Jadavpur University, course: 'utopian literature', optional course, MA English, Second Year, Fourth Semester, conducted by Rimi B. Chatterjee, language: English, comment: My teacher's comment: 'What a beautiful, perceptive and moving piece. i strongly recommend that you publish it.', abstract: Time has been conceptualized in various ways by the scientists, litterateurs and philosophers. But here, drawing on a 'utopian' narrative by a Russian author, Mukhopadhyay envisages an empathetic temporality that can create a mysterious compatibility between human time and natural time by ushering in a new temporal mode, a time of empathetically propelled togetherness. At the same time, the work also seeks to explore the ways in which we can modify our anthropocentric systems of thought by realigning ourselves with our planet that also opens us up towards new vistas of imagination. Beginning to invoke an empathetic temporality that changes autumn into spring, we can move towards an unimaginably wonderful future where Time is not conquered...

READ ONLINE
[9.29 MB]

Reviews

I actually started looking over this publication. It really is rally interesting throgh studying period. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

-- Dana Hintz

Good electronic book and valuable one. It really is basic but unexpected situations in the 50 percent in the pdf. You wont really feel monotony at at any moment of your time (that's what catalogues are for concerning when you ask me).

-- Elisa Reinger